

REFERENCES

1. F. J. Barchfeld, "Investigation of Roll Marking Relationships," Rolls 2000, 1996.
2. W. L. Roberts, "The Rolling Process Mechanical Engineering Explanation," Rolls For The Metalworking Industry, ISS, 1990, pp. 40 - 41.
3. W. L. Roberts, Flat Processing of Steel, Marcel Dekker, 1988.
4. F. A. K'Isa, H. Erzurum and J. Gross, "Stress Concentration Curves For Various Neck Configurations of Steel Mill Rolls," AISE Yearbook, 1969, pp. 637 - 641.

SUGGESTED REFERENCES

1. J. Pinkowski, M. Andjelich, "Tandem Roll Mark Source Cause Determination and Resulting Corrective Action," AISE, 1995.
2. K. Tiitto, "Measuring Stress in Rolls By Magnetoelastic Method," 27th Mechanical Working and Steel Processing, 1985, pp. 273 - 279.
3. W. Tait, "An Automatic NDT Inspection System for Forged Steel Work Rolls," 22nd Mechanical Working and Steel Processing, 1980, pp. 375 - 387.
4. J. F. Morris, M. J. Sorby, "The Development and Application of the Sarclad Rollscan Roll Inspection System," 25th Mechanical Working and Steel Processing, 1983, pp. 469 - 488.
5. K. A. Ridal, M. J. Sorby, "Further Developments in the Use of Sarclad Rollscan Technology for the Inspection of Rolling Mill Rolls," 27th Mechanical Working and Steel Processing, 1985, pp. 243 - 247.
6. G. A. Ott, "The Application, Metallurgy, and Maintenance of High Hardness, Ultra Deep Hardened Forged Steel Work Rolls," 38th Mechanical Working and Steel Processing, 1996, pp. 91 - 105.
7. D. D. Lang, D. P. Geier, "New Mill Roll Inspection System For Firecrack Detection," 38th Mechanical Working and Steel Processing, 1996, pp. 15 - 27.